DISTRICT NO. 1.

School discontinued, scholars provided for in Megunticook Dist.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

The spring term was taught by Miss Florence Brewster, well qualified in point of education, and successful in former schools, but for some reason she did not succeed as well in this school. Our judgment is, that an exercise of more tact in the school room and discretion in her contact with those in the neighborhood would have been more favorable to the conduct of the school. It was not a failure, neither do results show what was reasonably expected from the opportunities at hand. The school closed at the end of eight weeks. Miss Eleanor L. Griffith taught the fall and winter terms, a teacher fully competent and well qualified for the work. Under her hands the school made good progress, and showed that excellent work had been done, and it is to be regretted that sickness intervened in the latter part of the winter term, and brought the school to an early close. I take pleasure in commending the school for its deportment and discipline, and consider that it takes precedence in this, of all under my supervision.

DISTRICT NO. 3.

Miss Nina E. Titus had the direction of the school during the spring term, a bright, capable, painstaking teacher, and under her tuition good order was maintained, and when that has been secured in any school, good results are generally reached. Such was the case here. The school was a successful one, and a fair progress seen. The fall term was taught by Miss Alice W. Knight, a teacher of much experience, and well qualified in every point as an instructor. I desire to commend Miss Knight in the management of this school, the improvement was marked. The school closed with a very creditable exhibition in declamation and singing. For the winter term the agent secured the services of Mr. P. E. Boynton, an old experienced teacher, and one who had formerly taught in the school. Although Mr. Boynton is an old teacher he is not what might be considered a progressive one, and furthermore he lacked system in his management and when you add to this a decided opposition to him in the district, it is a wonder that he succeeded as well as he did. These combinations however did not make it entirely an unsuccessful school and it is just to say that the time was not all thrown away nor all the funds misapplied, some advance was observed.

DISTRICT NO. 4.

The services of Miss Jesse McNamara, who taught in the district last year were obtained, and she taught the school year. There was quite an increase in attendance during the spring term over last year, and a greater degree of interest in the school was noticed, and good progress was made and the school closed with satisfactory results, but the interest and attendance was not maintained in the fall, for both fell off, and results at the close of the term were not as satisfactory as in the spring. It must be obvious to parents in this district that to have a good school there must be a good attendance which promotes an interest and secures good results. Experience also leads us to observe that it requires more ability, tact and experience to conduct with interest and profit to all concerned, a very small school than is generally conceded.

DISTRICT NO. 5 OR BARNES.

The spring term of this school was taught by Miss Stella M. Drew, who had had some experience, having taught previously two terms. She taught five weeks, at the end of which it was considered expedient to close the school as results were not satisfactory. For the fall term Miss Lucy Cushman who had previously taught the school with excellent results was secured. Miss Cushman, who is an untiring worker, soon got the school on to a good basis, and results were so gratifying that it was decided to extend the sessions fifteen weeks and to accomplish this the parents in the district, furnished board free to the teacher for the term. The advancement made by the scholars was highly appreciated by the parents, and is much commended by your Supervisor.

REMARKS.

It has been thought well the past year to introduce Supplementary Reading into the schools. Most of the schools have done so and are doing this throughout the State with good results. We find it is working well here, it inspires zest, produces a deeper interest, and a desire on the part of the scholar to become a better reader. We note that good readers are very much lacking in our schools, and if we desire to promote this branch, we should furnish such reading matter as will encourage this pursuit.

The law that effects the management of the schools is being put into operation. The intention is to change somewhat the old system for what is considered to be a better one. It is evidently the design of those who have favored its enactment to make our schools more efficient. We hope such will be the result. Let us all, aid them in giving the new arrangement and impartial trial.

A. B. AREY, Supervisor.
